

The Centre for Social Markets and E3G invite you to a Discussion Forum, organised in co-operation with Chatham House and the Worldwatch Institute, Beyond Bali: Changing Role of the EU-US-China-India Towards a new global quad on climate change?

Tuesday 18th December 2007 • 3:00pm - 6:30pm

Henry Price Room • Chatham House (Royal Institute of International Affairs), London

The Bali talks on climate change are likely to be the most critical yet. With climate science firming up with every passing day, the need for early action by nations is becoming ever more compelling. Taking place just a few days after the conclusion of the UN convention on climate change in Bali, this Discussion Forum will take stock of the conference and reflect on its outcomes for progressive leadership on climate change by the EU, US, India and China.

Tom Burke, E3G • Chris Flavin, Worldwatch Institute • Bernice Lee, Chatham House • Malini Mehra, CSM
Prem Shankar Jha* • Ed McBride*, The Economist
